

Abstract for the Disclosure

The “Island Ant Guard Pet Feeding Dish” was designed to keep ants and other creeping bugs out of pets food by utilizing a border of water, the same as a moat was used in previous times to keep out invaders. The water is placed in a small trench encircling the feeding dish and covered with an extended lip to prevent the pets from drinking it, and also to prevent food from falling into the water, thus eliminating a potential bridge for the ants to reach the food.